This is pure adrenaline--an eight-second battle of wills between a 150-pound man and a one-ton bull. It is competition in its rawest form. What was once a county-fair spectacle is now a worldwide phenomenon. Huge crowds fill glittering state-of-the-art arenas from coast to coast and across the globe, and more than 100 million watch on television. This is the PBR. This is the toughest sport on earth.

Jeffrey Johnstone is editor in chief of the Professional Bull Riders and Pro Bull Rider magazine, 8 Seconds, the PBR's official regular-season souvenir program; and the PBR World Finals souvenir program. He lives in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Keith Ryan Cartwright is the senior writer for pbrnow.com. He has written for a variety of publications including Espn.com, American Cowboy, Country Weekly, and the Tennessean. In 1999 Rolex/Golf Digest named him among the top five college sportswriters in America. Ty Murray is a nine-time World Champion rodeo cowboy and the cofounder and board adviser of the Professional Bull Riders.

Outstanding book. Great photos and text. For those of us who just became fans of this great sport, this book really does explain a lot.

I bought this book for my husband so I asked what he thought of it and he thinks it a GREAT book! The pictures are absolutely wonderful and the book is interesting and informative. He said that if he had only one picky thing to say, it would be that he wished the pictures had more captions. He's very happy with it and highly recommends it to the bullriding lover in YOUR life.

Giving them as gifts and they will be loved

I love the book. I'm a big PBR fan and it has a picture of my son and hero in it Ryan Dirteater... Also has some other favorite bull riders in it.

This is wonderful book with the facts about PBR. So, if you are a fan of the PBR then you need to pick this book up
