Marty Hair is an Advanced Master Gardener and journalist who has been a news and feature writer and editor at Michigan's largest newspaper, the Detroit Free Press, since 1978. Her previously published articles are available on the Detroit Free Press website at www.freep.com. Laura Coit is the former horticulturist at the Michigan State Horticulture Demonstration Gardens. She practiced her craft at the Royal Horticulture Society's garden in Wesley, England. Tim Boland has a master's degree in botany from Michigan State University. His expertise is in native Michigan plants and in plant conservation.

If you garden in Michigan then this book is indispensable. One of my favorites. My other copy mysteriously disappeared. H-m-m...come to think of it my sister visited that week.....

As a transplanted Coloradoan coming from an arid climate to a much more moist environment, I found this book to be a good overview of plants, flowers, trees and shrubs that will do well in the various climate zones of Michigan. Still, I longed for much more information than provided by this book. I'll have to rely a lot on local nurseries for additional information.

This is a great book! I bought it for my daughter because I have one and use it all the time.

Was a present and the recipient liked it.

This is a great book to have as a gardener/landscaper. excellent details, good selection and good pictures. I would've liked maybe even some more plants and some more detailed pictures for this to be a 5 star.

This book is fantastic, to the point that I've started to wear it out. Details of planting sites, conditions plant love, and pest etc. My go to book for info on plants unknown

Excellent. The best gardening book I have ever bought. Well-written, easy to understand, a wealth of information simply put. Love it. I highly recommend it.

Lovely, colorful and informative book. Easy to read. A great aid to the amateur and more experienced gardener.
