Pattie Barron is a gardening journalist who writes about plants and gardens full-time. She has a weekly column in the London Evening Standard's Homes & Property section, and is also the gardening editor for Good Housekeeping magazine.

I am a landscape gardener and found this helpful, practical and well illustrated. I would recommend it for anyone interested in creating a Mediterranean garden

Having just purchased a house in the Provence, I desperately needed knowing how to approach my garden in a sustainable, ecological way. Here in Switzerland our rainfall is more than needed and thus I need new techniques and knowledge. This book inspires and explains excellently. Can't wait to get my hands into dirt....Daniela

Lot's of ideas for draught ridden So. Cal.

It was difficult to know how to rate this. If you've already got Pattie Barron's 'Make Your Own

Mediterranean Garden – then you don't want this as it's just a reprint of that book. That book is my favourite on the subject and I'd give it 5 stars. This is just a cheap copy with everything reduced - small print and small pictures. Do yourself a favour and buy the bigger one! Make your own Mediterranean Garden is actually a softback, retitled version of the hardback 'Create a Mediterranean Garden: Planting a Low-Maintenance, Drought-Proof Paradise Anywhere'. Seems to be something of a habit with this book.
