Customer Reviews

Borch, a cartographic publishing company from Germany, makes tough, long-lasting maps with non-toxic, environmentally responsible lamination material.

We have used the Borch laminated maps on several international trips and love them. They are durable, have very good detail, and are great for the preplanning we do. They can be taken out in the rain with out fear of disintegration. They don't break at the folds like other maps. Routes can be drawn directly on the map, notes can be written on the surface, then as you gain information the trip details can be wiped clean, or revised with a wet cloth. I have used ballpoint, grease pencils, and even Sharpies (I like the sharpie the best.) All can be cleaned off or modified as needed. We are currently in the planning stage of a trip to Chile and Argentina, and can not speak to the accuracy of these particular maps, but if past history is any indication of quality these too will be great.

Good map. Gave me what I needed in a weatherproof form. I would buy it again.

The map helped my husband and I travel Chile with ease- it had blown up areas of the major cities which came in helpful at times as well.

This map worked well for my trip to Chile. I would say it needs to be more detailed, but Chile is a very difficult country to be on map, so I would not hold it against them.

Very detailed. Almost too much but will be useful on my journey to the long and narrow country.

Great

Nice map I have several countries I would rate higher but since I have not yet made it to Chile to test how accurate it is, I only gave it four stars. I have had maps that were not quite right, in Mexico not Chile but it can be confusing when that happens.

We are headed to Chile for the month of January. Armed with three good travel books, a GPS chip from Garmin, and at least one good road map, we are off on another adventure. I will update these purchases for our Chilean travel as we use them. This laminated map was great for planning while we were back in the USA. Half of the country is on one side and the lower half is on the back. There are detailed maps of Santiago and other metro areas. There are also large sections of Chile that have been delineated in more detail and easier to use than the entire map. The more I use this map the more I appreciate the info it contains. Upon arrival we visited friends and they gave us the "COPEC" booklet of maps of the entire country. The exact name of this map is "Chiletur Copec 2014. Copec is owned by Mobil and is a large chain of service stations that we have seen everywhere in Chile. This booklet is what we have been using for day to day driving. After one week we feel we are getting the hang of the road system. Generally good roads with LOTS of tolls.
