Mindy MacDonald graduated from the University of Oregon with a degree in kinesiology. But it wasn't until she took a job at a local Christian bookstore that she discovered her passion for books. Mindy's gift for storytelling was further cultivated when she worked as an elementary school education assistant, and she has since taken classes in writing children's literature. Mindy and her husband are motivated by bringing God glory through their writing and musical talents. They make their home in New Jersey with their two cats, Jack and Charlie.

Cutest book ever! Each page has the identifying scripture and then each disciple is introduced. Highly recommend it. You can't quite see in the description but the faces are cut away so the faces poke through the book flap. We bought the bible characters along with the book for teaching. Great combo!

I like the idea behind this book and the teachable sections for kids to learn about the disciples. The only reason I can't give it 5 stars is because the concept of the faces only being the stable parts does make it look a little creepy since as you get further through the books they are built up to stick through all the pages. Kids may not pick up on this but my husband (who isn't a Christian to begin with but will read a Noah lift the flap back) refuses to read the book to our son due to this. To each his own, person preference here.

Great book. Captures the attention of children ages 2 - 10.

I loved her book "9 Fruits Alive" so much that I took a chance and bought this as well. I LOVE it! It's done in the same style and its a wonderful way for my 1 year old to learn about all of the disciples! He loves to point at all the disciples faces and play with the holes in the book (where the embellishments show through). Very fun book! Love that he's learning what many Christian adults don't know, the names of all the disciples!

My son loves these books! They are colorful and fun to read. He enjoys feeling the raised faces and noticing the differences from page to page. We have several of these books and each one really captures his attention (which is significant for a 2 year old boy)!

I thought it was a great book!

My children love this book. Having the faces pop out at you was a real treat. I would suggest the book for age 3 and over.
