Kim's distinctive paintings and illustrations draw freely from Indian spiritual imagery, Persian miniature painting, Medieval and Renaissance illumination, Celtic folklore and Victorian book design. Her unique combination of Western alchemical symbols and intricate borders introduces the viewer to a rich and intriguing fantasy world. Kim Waters has produced major works with her voluminous Illuminations from the Bhagavad Gita; The Butter Thief; Enchanted Tales, and numerous book illustrations and private commissions.

love listening to this wonderful story.

This story is so simply and beautifully told by Chris Murray!! I read it to my two year old grand daughter and she kept asking me to read it to her again and again! She loved the pictures. They are beautiful. Please write more stories like these!! Thank you!

For Christmas I gave our 5-year-old granddaughter a small statue of Krishna stealing "the butter." To accompany it, I gave her the "Butter Thief." What a wonderful book it is! The illustrations are beautiful and the story is told in a loving and compassionate voice. The book is a jewel, never to be gotten tired of reading.
