There's certainly a lot of "stuff" here. My problem is that it's all very superficial. The "Top 10 list" contrivance imposes an arbitrary structure that in some cases clearly requires some filler to fill out a particular list. It also means that any particular item's coverage is frustratingly thin. Instead of a whole chapter on, say, Seaworld or the San Diego Zoo and strategies for visiting these attractions, you get... two pages. And within those two pages, the authors attempt to cover 10 discrete things, meaning nothing at all is covered well or in any detail. Adding to the frustration is that much of those two pages will be taken up with tiny photos that are themselves too small to be of any real use. I've found this book to be entirely inadequate in planning a family vacation to San Diego, so ordered the Frommer's counterpart. Frommer's San Diego 2012 (Frommer's Complete Guides)

Completely useless book. No information other than very basic lists. Waste of money.

The most useful travel book we had for our trip. For those with little time to enjoy San Diego, this is THE book.

Bought it, used it, loved it. Recommendation: If you are new to San Diego, don't go there without one of these guides! We used it everyday on our family vacation-took it everywhere with us ...very useful and very handy. I'm glad that we purchase this guide ahead of time-lots of informative info and a few good maps as well.

It's a pity that it is not as easy to find a good guide for San Diego that it is for San Francisco, Los Angeles or NYC. However this one guide tells you what to see, museum, sights, etc, but don't use it in order to find restaurants and bars, the selection in this book is quite poor from this point of view.

Great recommendations. This guide helped me plan a great trip with kids. I was able to plan what time and types of tickets to get for Sea World and the Zoo.

I like purchasing guidebooks for anyplace that I am visiting - I love this brand book. It has great photos, easy to process information and always has a pull out map that makes sense for someone like me.

I took this guide on with me while visiting family. The descriptions and directions were invaluable! I walked and toured around on my own. It is full of helpful and interesting information. Had a great time.
